Incoming North Carolina Governor Pat McCrory said his top priorities include changing the state’s tax system. McCrory believes that the present NC corporate and personal income tax rates are holding back recovery from the Great Recession because they make the state less attractive to business executives seeking to create jobs. Governor McCrory was sworn into office on Saturday January 12. Governor McCrory supports vocational education and working with business leaders to make the state more competitive in the business marketplace.
